PROBLEM

Hiring Challenge: 52% of talent acquisition leaders report the hardest part of recruitment is finding the 'right candidate' from a large and diverse applicant pool.

The problem is 2-fold:

1. Applicant Uncertainty: Candidates are unsure about which job level is the best fit for them (CRC 1-4).

2. Recruiter Effort: HR recruiters spend significant time matching applicants to job positions using imprecise semantic searches or unsophisticated Al screening methods.

Hiring the wrong applicant results in frustration, attrition, and delayed project initiation and progress.
